

MRS. THAW, "MOTHER OF SORROW," IN COURT WHERE SON TWICE BEFORE MET TRIAL

Harry K. Thaw

Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw

Harry Thaw and the latest photo of his mother, now 70 years old, taken in the New York courtroom at Thaw's new trial on the charge of conspiracy. Ten years ago Mrs. Thaw sat in the same room and heard her son's first trial for his life. She still maintains he was justified in killing Stanford White, and believes her son will surely win freedom finally.

Policeman Reynolds of Piermont, N. Y., carried a blanket to cover a horse a woman told him had been standing in the snow all night. The horse proved to be a wooden one.

Twenty-five dollars "for scrubbing of the tombstones of my neighbors in the graveyard" was one of the peculiar bequests in the will of Mrs. Margaretha H. Schmidt of Belleville, Ill.
